ABSTRACT

The South Dakota State Library 1975 annual report is presented in this volume, followed by tables of statistical data on services, resources, income, and expenditures for South Dakota public, academic, and special libraries. Sections include: (1) a summary of public library statistics by size of library and type of library; (2) map of areas with adequate public library service; (3) public library statistics alphabetically by library name; (4) academic library statistics alphabetically by city; (5) special library statistics alphabetically by city; and (6) a directory of all South Dakota public libraries, and reporting special and academic libraries, alphabetically by city. The directory lists name, address, type, person in charge, and telephone for each library. (Author/KP)

INTRODUCTION AND SUMMARY

The South Dakota State Library strives to assure the people of South Dakota equal access to the informational resources of mankind.

The annual report to the Governor and the statistical report which follows it is an effort to show the progress of those efforts.

This annual compilation represents a departure from previous public library statistical reports. Directory information and statistics for the special and academic libraries are being reported here for the first time. It is hoped that this additional information will be found useful by all who utilize the report.

This report consists of an introduction, summary of public library statistics, the listing of statistics for all reporting libraries, and a directory of all South Dakota public libraries and the reporting special and academic libraries. The directory is arranged alphabetically by city and lists the library name, address, type of library, name of librarian or person in charge of the library, and telephone number for each library (when available).

The statistics contained herein were reported by 106 of the 126 South Dakota public libraries, 19 academic libraries, and 36 special libraries. Included in this number, in addition to legally established public libraries, are club and association libraries and several tribal libraries. The cooperation of all reporting libraries is greatly appreciated. The statistics for each library are listed in four successive categories: Service, Resources, Income and Expenditures.

The four pages in the statistical summary section contain averages in each category for city and county libraries of various sizes, and combined averages for all reporting public libraries. These averages are only as accurate and complete as the annual reports upon which they are based. The accuracy is also limited by the failure of some libraries to report fully.

All statistics are listed as whole numbers, except hours of service and number of employees which are reported in tenths (e.g. 10.5) and levy mills and per capita figures which are reported in hundredths (e.g. 2.15). The notation "N/R" indicates that a library did not report that particular statistic.

SOUTH DAKOTA STATE LIBRARY
Annual Report, Fiscal Year 1975

The Commission has set as its goal the task to assure the people of South Dakota equal access to the informational resources of mankind through expansion of the material resources of the State Library, through assistance in the development of libraries, and through coordination of library resources throughout the State. To implement that goal and the mandates of the statutes the Commission provided the people of South Dakota information, library materials and services through seven programs in Fiscal Year 1975. Those seven were the Administrative Services, Information Services, Library Coordination and Development Services, Audio-Visual Services, Visually and Physically Handicapped Services, Institutional Services, and the Interlibrary Cooperation Programs.

The Administrative Services Program supported the activities of the Commission, an Advisory Council required for state participation in the provisions of the federal Library Services and Construction Act, and the State Librarian. It provided rental housing and utilities for all programs except those of the Library for the Visually and Physically Handicapped, fiscal and personnel services for all programs, and planning for each program. During the year the major activities of the program consisted of promulgating rules and regulations for the State Documents Depository System, revising all the statutes governing libraries in Title 14 of the South Dakota Compiled Laws of 1967, and guiding legislation through the Legislative Assembly that substantially revised SDCL Chapters 14-1 and 14-7, and repealed SDCL Chapter 14-5. The revisions rewrote the laws governing the activities of the State Library Commission and allowing libraries of the state to utilize an Interstate Library Compact compatible with similar compacts in other states. Considerable work was involved in revising the municipal, regional and county library laws for introduction in a future session of the Legislative Assembly; this included holding two hearings on draft documents. All planning for a new State Library Building was completed with bids to be let in the first week of the next fiscal year.

The State Librarian represented the State of South Dakota at regional and national library levels which included serving as President of the Mountain-Plains Library Association; as a member of the Board of Directors of the Bibliographical Center for Research in Denver, Colorado; a member of the Western Library Council of the Western Interstate Commission for Higher Education; and as a member of the Executive Board of the Chief Officers of State Library Agencies. Much of the regional and national activity of the Director involved planning in company with other states for a regional and national network of libraries for the sharing of resources across state lines.

The State Library received a program review by the federal Department of Health, Education and Welfare during the month of February. The review studied the administration of Library Services and Construction Act funds made available to the State of South Dakota, the implementation of programs within federal guidelines and priorities, and the planning for future programs. The review made two major recommendations and those were that individual program managers should be made more cognizant of which parts of their programs were on federal funds where federal priorities must be met and that more federal funds should be distributed to demonstrations out in the state. They were very critical of the necessity of the State Library to write two plans, one for statewide planning and the other for participation in the Library Services and Construction Act. These criticisms were made despite the fact that the reviewers recognized the inability of the state generally to plan proper utilization of federal funds when both the amount to be received and the date of receipt have been unpredictable both in the past and during this reported year. There is also considerable difference between state priorities and those of the federal government.

The program published a bi-monthly "Newsletter" giving news of the State Library, developments by libraries in the state, region, or nation, and items of interest to local library personnel. The "Newsletter" was distributed to all academic, school, special, and public libraries in the state, the legislature, and to all public library trustees. The various state and federal plans were published in a document called "Planning for the Future."

35,590 requests for information, library materials and services were received and processed by the Information Services Program during the year. This represented an increase of 53 percent over the request level of FY 1974. To fill those requests 49,011 books and 3,991 pamphlets were lent to citizens of the state; 86,848 pages of print and 608 microfiche sheets were duplicated and sent to citizens in lieu of lending the materials; 1,547 requests were answered by telephone, 148 by letter, 1,312 in person and 702 by Teletype when delivery of materials was not required; 2,520 requests were referred to other libraries in South Dakota, 1,110 to the Bibliographical Center for Research in Denver, and 994 to other out-of-state libraries thus showing a general increase in the use of Interlibrary Loans of 119 percent. This increase not only reflects the increase in use but also shows a large growth in the level of sophistication in the type of requests received, particularly from governmental agencies.

To assist in filling those requests and to keep its collections current, the technical services part of the program acquired and processed 5,849 books, 5,535 federal documents, 1,176 state documents, 20,103 microfiche titles, 296 reels of microfilm, 41 paperbacked books, 2,289 pamphlets, and 2,444 maps and pictures. In addition this part of the program ordered and/or processed 613 items for the Department of Environmental Protection, 373 items for the Criminal Justice Training Center and 150 items for a variety of other state agencies. The Criminal Justice Training Center library was cooperatively established under a LEAA grant to the Department of Public Safety. The library ordered and processed not only books but designed the library facility, established its library catalog and circulation routines, trained center staff in the use of the library, and purchased films supporting the curriculum of the center. Technical services continued and completed the task of removing from all inventory records those 120,676 items that either were transferred to other libraries in the previous year or were discarded in a general weeding of the library's collections. The program also maintained the South Dakota Union Catalog through filing 95,902 records received from other libraries in the state. Each day it checked-in the receipts from 20 newspaper and 670 periodical and magazine subscriptions.

During the year, a Documents Center was established as a new part of the program. Given the specific responsibility for developing a documents depository system for state publications, for routinely collecting the publications of all departments, for listing those publications, and for distributing them to libraries in the system, the program staff visited or contacted every agency of state government to ascertain its publishing levels, to establish the routine by which agencies would deliver their fourteen copies of each publication to the center, and to explain that the purpose of the center was to enable the citizens of the state to have a series of centers around the state to which they might go to borrow a state publication. It is hoped that this center in time will enable the agencies of state government to reduce the number of copies of each document published, since each will be able to direct a citizen to one of the depositories where he or she might borrow the document needed. The center will also be catalytical in enabling the state to ascertain the amount of publishing its departments actually produce. Six monthly "Checklists" were published during the year beginning in January, 1975. 1,176 documents were received and listed by the center after it began its operations. Five depositories were initially established, rules and regulations were promulgated for establishing an additional five depositories, and applications for depository status were received from libraries throughout the state. In July of FY 1976, all depositories will be established. A secondary function of the center is to serve as the Federal Documents Depository for State Government. This service, begun in the previous year, began to reach its full potential, since it receives all bills filed in the Congress, all hearings, and the reports of most major federal agencies. 5,535 federal documents were logged in at the center during the year.

The Information Services Program published a brochure describing the State Library's services, a procedure manual for using teletype equipment in those libraries of the state with such equipment, and began work on producing an interlibrary-loan manual. It published a monthly "Checklist" of materials received of interest to state government officials and regularly distributed it to all departments and agencies of the state. Newsreleases were issued to press and radio whenever a service or a publication of interest to the general public was received or noted. A list of large-print books was compiled and will be published in early FY 1976. The Program staff worked with the staff of other programs in developing a materials selection policy for the State Library. The policy was subsequently adopted by the Commission.

A vital arm of the Administrative Program is the Library Coordination and Development Services Program. It supported the State Librarian through collecting library statistics from libraries throughout the state, developing innovative techniques for furthering the state library's services to citizens of the state, planning for both the State Library and for state-wide library services, and serving as the library part of planning for the Department of Education and Cultural Affairs. The program also served as the contact point for the one hundred and twenty or more small and large public libraries of the state for advice, professional assistance, or administrative counsel. It received 3,005 requests for such services during the year and filled those requests by making 91 on-site visits to libraries, 98 telephone consultations, and 2,816 written communications. Many of these answers involved considerable time in that they involved assisting in program budgeting, writing building programs, suggesting internal library layouts, serving as an intermediary between the local library and the Attorney General by requesting opinions concerning public library law, evaluating levels of library service for both individuals and local governments, and promoting cooperative efforts among local libraries.

Over 42,766 pieces of information were mailed to local libraries by the program. This included newsreleases, booklists, memoranda describing new sources of library funding or legislative action or announcements of workshops or meetings. One of the more important parts of this volume of mail was a mailing to all residents of seven counties of a "Books-by-mail" list of State Library materials which could be requested by mail. Done as an experiment with Library Services and Construction Act funds, this project attempted to ascertain the utilization of such a service in counties where there is either no library or only inadequate library services and where the average income per family is the lowest in the state. Evaluation of the project in the next fiscal year will enable the State Library to plan whether or not to expand the service statewide in rural areas.

A responsibility of the program is to provide training for up-dating library skills among the state's librarians through workshops on both innovative new library developments and traditional library techniques for library personnel. One major workshop on Information and Referral Services was jointly sponsored by the South Dakota and North Dakota State Libraries utilizing resource personnel from both states. It was held in Aberdeen and served, for South Dakotans, to inform them of how they might establish such services on a local level and relate to a statewide service being developed by the Department of Social Services. A number of audio-visual workshops were held to demonstrate and to promote the use of the State Library's 16mm film collection among groups other than the public schools. Several workshops were conducted as programs for regional groups of librarians. On-site individual consulting continued to be the most utilized training technique.

Since South Dakota does not have an accredited School for training librarians, the State Library joined with other Western States in supporting the library component of the Western Interstate Commission for Higher Education; this was done late in the spring. (WICHE also serves as the catalytic agent for pulling the western states into a network for sharing of library resources.) Two training programs were made available to librarians of the state after funds supporting the program were utilized in joining WICHE. One librarian attended a three session training program to train librarians to train others in interlibrary cooperation. Four librarians were selected to participate in a series of workshops designed to train librarians in programs related to internal staff development. The result of shared grantsmanship among several states has resulted in a return of three dollars received in shared services, training, and planning for every dollar spent in the membership fee of WICHE.

Professional support of the audio-visual services program was provided by the Library Coordination and Development Services program through selection of materials and organization of collections. One staff member was assigned to preview and select films for purchase and to organize the collection through recataloging it for more efficient use by people in the state. 445 films were previewed from which 149 were selected for purchase. A 16mm film catalog was published through use of computer listing and indexing for the whole film collection at the beginning of the year and a supplement reflecting additions was published at the end of the year. Work was begun on recataloging the filmstrip and kit collection and an annotated book catalog will be produced reflecting this work in the next fiscal year. Work involves handling each of 2,682 items.

Statistics for public libraries were collected and published reflecting a change in reporting dates for public libraries. Each was asked to report on its most recently completed fiscal year rather than on an arbitrary fiscal year where statistics had to be split and where reports to local funding authorities could not necessarily be used due to a difference in fiscal years. A "South Dakota Public Library Trustee's Manual" was published as an aid to local public library governing bodies.

31,678 requests for audio-visual materials or information were received and processed by the Audio-Visual Services Program. This represented an increase of 67 percent over the request level of FY 1974. To fill those requests, program staff lent 13,571 16mm films, and 19,415 other audio-visual materials including filmstrips, kits, phonograph or taped recordings, etc., to public, academic and school libraries, nursing homes, institutions, and to citizen groups. Both the 61 percent increase in films lent and the slight decrease in the use of other audio-visual materials reflect changes planned for the program where it will gradually phase-out all audio-visual materials except the 16mm film, since the film is the one type material which few, if any, school or public libraries can afford. 1,269 requests were answered by telephone when delivery of materials was not required, as were 334 by letter, 418 in person and 4 by teletype. 26 requests were referred to other audio-visual sources. 10,695 requests were returned unfilled reflecting an increase in unfilled requests of 180 percent. Unfilled requests show that the material requested is not available for the day the requestor needs it and that no other materials could be substituted. This program differs considerably from the Information Services Program in that its materials are requested and "booked" or reserved months before the time the materials are sent. Audience statistics for 16mm films were kept and the number of persons viewing library films rose from 374,240 in FY 1974 to 417,650 in FY 1975.

The addition of 374 films shows the continued emphasis placed on the 16mm film in this program. All were selected by staff from the library coordination and development program as described above. A good number were ordered at the end of the previous fiscal year and were received and processed during this year. Only eight items among other types of audio-visual materials were purchased. Program staff began a serious weeding of dated and worn materials and discarded, as a result, 88 films, 315 filmloops, 834 filmstrips, 307 kits, and 296 other miscellaneous items.

The program made its services and equipment available to other agencies of state government by duplicating 3,966 tapes for state agencies. Many were publicity tapes for radio similar to those of the Game, Fish and Parks Department made by Tony Dean. It housed, inspected and mended, and circulated films for the Criminal Justice Training Center. It worked with the Department of Agriculture in preserving a classic South Dakota made silent film on the rattlesnakes. And it worked with agencies such as the ASAP program and the Historical Resource Center in inspecting and mending 68 films. By the end of the year it had completed a project of checking, cleaning and bringing to service levels a whole supply of projection equipment which will in the future be listed and made available to state government agencies for their use.

Though the State Library's Visually and Physically Handicapped Services Program was plagued with personnel changes throughout the year, it ended the year with an excellent operating organization and an increase in usage of 9.8 percent. The program serves the handicapped of both North and South Dakota; those north of the border being served on a contract with the North Dakota State Library. Total number of requests received was 98,699, up from 79,314 in FY 1974. There was an increase in new readers of 18.8 percent but cancellations, transfers, and deaths allowed the total number of readers to increase only 5.4 percent. The number of active readers increased to 2,082 by June 30th. 78,640 library materials (talking books, cassette books, Braille, etc.) were circulated to readers; 111 interlibrary loans were sought from libraries outside the state; 1,331 reference questions were answered; 2,617 telephone calls were made to users or received from them; and over 16,000 pieces of mail were either received or sent covering questions about the service, problems with equipment or materials, or public relations. In this service where so many of the users are aged, infirm, lonely, or confined, each contact with a reader must utilize a quantity of empathy that takes a very sympathetic staff and lots of time.

All materials used by this program: talking books, cassette books, Braille, and the machines to utilize them are deposited with the State Library by the Library of Congress. During the year 4,727 new talking books, 501 new cassette books, 506 Braille volumes, and 50 other miscellaneous items were received and processed. In addition the program itself utilized volunteers to record 12 cassette books of South Dakota and western materials. To prepare the program for the gradual change to all cassette materials as the talking books on disc are phased out, the staff worked with the Services to the Handicapped in the Department of Social Services, the State Association for the Blind, the Lions, etc., in obtaining donations for a high speed cassette tape duplicator. This equipment was ordered before the end of the year and will not only speed the making of cassette tapes from masters sent by the Library of Congress but will also further the volunteer taping program. Tape recorders of very high quality were purchased during the year, mailing boxes for them were constructed, and volunteers were sought from throughout the state to increase the amount of instate created materials for readers. A contract was signed with the Library of Congress making the state library the only distributor of talking book and cassette book machines in the state. Due to the fact that the use of Braille has dropped dramatically to below 100 users in both states, plans were made at the end of the year to contract with the regional library in Salt Lake City, the Utah State Library, to handle North and South Dakota Braille readers as it handles those of other western states. That library is established for that purpose and can give our Braille users a far higher level of quality service than can this program.

A continuing problem for this program is the low number of users in relation to the potential number of users. National statistics suggest that from 3 to 5 percent of the population is so handicapped that it can use these services. In the Dakota's this would mean from 18,000 to 30,000 persons. The 2,082 active users are not a very large percentage of those numbers. The program manager began an extensive campaign of public relations through developing a whole series of tape recorded radio and television spots and through visiting contact people in their offices throughout both states or at their meetings and conventions. It is a very difficult group to contact since many will not admit their handicaps.

The program published a regular newsletter to readers at least quarterly and a list of new in-house created Cassette Books.

Eight institutions received grants under the Institutional Services Program along with consulting services. They are the State Penitentiary, the Youth Forestry Camp, the State Training School in Plankinton, the School for the Visually Handicapped, the School for the Deaf, the Crippled Children's School and Hospital, the Human Services Center in Yankton, and the Redfield State Hospital and School. Grants were made on a formula of a thousand dollar base grant per participating institution plus an amount derived by dividing any remaining funds by the total of the average annual number of residents in all institutions during the previous fiscal year and prorating the amount to each institution by its resident count. A consultant made 119 visits to institutions in order to monitor the grant program and to provide on-site assistance at each institution. All grant funds are derived from the Library Services and Construction Act and must be spent on library materials and equipment.

The only State Library program completely funded with federal funds (Title III of the Library Services and Construction Act) is the Interlibrary Cooperation Program. Funds for the program were not received and expenditure authority approved until June of the fiscal year; they were used to extend the experimental communication project and to pay access and transaction fees to the Bibliographical Center for Research in Denver. Upon evaluation of the initial communication project of FY 1974 in the spring of this fiscal year, the project was expanded to include nine additional institutions. Initially grants for installation and operation of teletype (TWX) equipment had been made to the libraries of the University of South Dakota at Vermillion, the South Dakota School of Mines and Technology, and South Dakota State University. The Directors of those libraries, as part of their evaluation, urged that the project be continued in their libraries and extended to other libraries in the state. In June grants of $2,500 each were renewed for the three initial recipients and nine additional grants were executed by contract. Seven were made to the following libraries: Black Hills State College Library, the Rapid City Public Library, Northern State College Library, Alexander Mitchell Public Library in Aberdeen, Sioux Falls Public Library, Dakota State College Library, and the library of the University of South Dakota in Springfield. One grant was made to the Health Sciences Library at the University of South Dakota in Vermillion to connect the emerging system to the MEDLARS network through the University of Nebraska into the National Library of Medicine. The final grant was made to the library of Sioux Falls College to connect with the Colleges of Mid-America network which includes the libraries of Huron College, Dakota Wesleyan University, Sioux Falls College, Yankton College, and Mount Marty College; Sioux Falls College also serves as the union catalog center for Sioux Falls institutions thus serving Augustana and the local Baptist Seminary. This additional series of grants for a year of teletype operation and service virtually completes the network of libraries planned for the State of South Dakota for purposes of resource sharing. The components of the network are as follows:

1. A central union catalog lists the holdings of all the major libraries in South Dakota and is located in the South Dakota State Library.

2. Citizens without libraries or with inadequate libraries, all school and public libraries, and all post secondary institution libraries have access to the Union Catalog via In-WATS telephone as well as access to the State Library's large back-up collection of library materials.

3. Twelve large libraries, all contributors to the Union Catalog, have rapid teletype access to the Union Catalog and consequently to each other after the Union Catalog tells them where materials are located.

4. The State Library, after utilizing its own collection for most citizen, school, library, public library, and small post secondary library requests has rapid access on teletype to the collections of all libraries listed in the Union Catalog.

5. When all resources in the state have been exhausted by all libraries serving citizens of the state either directly or indirectly through this network, then materials are sought outside the state through the Bibliographical Center for Research in Denver, Colorado, which center is supported jointly by the State Libraries of South Dakota, Wyoming, Colorado, and Utah. Requests are placed directly by libraries having teletype equipment; the State Library forwards requests for those libraries not having such equipment.

6. Planning is now underway, supported by large outside grants to WICHE, to join the Bibliographical Center in Denver with similar centers in Seattle and Sacramento, to utilize the computer developments at Stanford University and the Washington State Library, to eventually provide for rapid transmission of requests for library materials, thus joining the major libraries of seventeen western states in one giant network whereby the collections of those libraries will be listed and made rapidly available to any citizen of the west through his or her most convenient library. Our own Union Catalog lists approximately 1,000,000 locations. It is estimated that this system will list and access 104,000,000 items. The center in Denver lists approximately 15,000,000 locations.

Attached is the Fiscal Report and the Inventory Report. In the Fiscal Report it should be noted that $19,624.32 of State Funds reverted to the General Fund. These reflected salary money not used either because the position was left vacant or while the position was filled with a person under the CETA, WIN, or other such training programs where persons in the unemployed sector of the population were given training and were not brought onto the payroll until successful completion of their training under a grant from other sources.

All federal and North Dakota funds were encumbered by the end of the year but the encumberances will not clear the library's books until materials are delivered. In some cases this may cause us to carry the encumbrance as much as a year. The encumbrances reflect large film, book, and equipment orders placed at the end of June after expenditure authority was granted by the Interim Appropriations Committee at its June meeting. Federal funds were not drawn for construction of the new State Library Building and will not be until they are needed to pay the first large bills presented after completion of certain levels of construction.

Under the second page of the report concerning "Other funds" the figures show that Fund 311 (Federal Construction) was finally cleared. All Federal funds carried from Fiscal years 1973 and 1974 were also cleared. Fund 877 is the fund into which receipts are placed when lost materials are paid for or when costs of tape duplication materials and time are received from other state agencies. They are paid out to replace the lost materials or to buy the tape, cassettes, etc., needed.
